

Hawthorn Historical Society - Privacy policy

The Hawthorn Historical Society values the privacy of our members and website visitors.

We will only record your details such as your email address and telephone numbers if you take out a membership with the HHS, make a booking through the society or request information from us, such as for a past newsletter or make a research query.

Your details will never be shared or disclosed to anyone else without your consent, and will only be used for the purpose you have provided them for. Information would only be shared with a third party if you consent to the disclosure or we are compelled and authorized to do so by law.

If you do provide information to us, it is stored in such a way so any personally identifiable information is protected from loss or misuse. Only authorized persons are allowed access to this information and it is treated as confidential.

When you visit our site, we do not at present log information about your visit. Our website does however provide links to third party websites whose management is outside of our control. We do not accept any responsibility for their activities, and we advise you to examine the terms and conditions of using their websites before use and disclosing any information to them.

From time to time, the Hawthorn Historical Society may review and update its privacy policy and approach. If this happens, then revised versions of the privacy policy will be made available on the website.

Our approach to privacy adheres to the Australian Government's National Privacy Principles. You can obtain more information on Australia's approach to privacy from the Australian Privacy Commissioner's website.

If you have any questions about our policy, or would like to access information we may hold about you, then please email us at hawthornhistoricalsociety@gmail.com
